

Computer Studies of Hydrogen Ion Channeling in Open Carbon Nanotube

Vitaly Eltekov¹

¹Moscow State University
Physics Department
Vorobyovy Gory
Moscow 117602
Russia

In this paper the channeling of hydrogen ions (H, D, and T) in open carbon nanotube is investigated using computer simulation. The molecular dynamics model is applied to study the slowing down process of energetic ions. The angular and energy distributions of passed ions were obtained for various values of initial energy and angle of entering of ion in carbon nanotube.