

ECS Establishes Editorial Advisory Committee

It is with great pleasure that we inform our readership that the ECS Journals Editorial Board has constituted an Editorial Advisory Committee (EAC). The main functions of this newly created body are to expedite and facilitate evaluation and publication decisions of a growing number of manuscripts submitted to the Journal of The Electrochemical Society and Electrochemical and Solid-State Letters. The EAC will be involved primarily in topical areas of growth as well as in areas in which the journals enjoy a very large number of submissions. Current members of the EAC are as follows:

Silvia Armini, IMEC, Leuven, Belgium
S. V. Babu, Clarkson University, Potsdam, NY, USA
Teng-Ming Chen, National Chiao-Tung University, Hsinchu, Taiwan
Raymond Gorte, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, PA, USA
Shimshon Gottesfeld, Cellera Technologies, Caesarea, Israel
Rika Hagiwara, Kyoto University, Kyoto, Japan
Ray Hua Horng, National Cheng Kung University, Tainan, Taiwan
Daniel Lincot, IRDEP, Chatou, France
Arumugam Manthiram, University of Texas, Austin, TX, USA
Kailash Mishra, Osram Sylvania, Beverly, MA, USA
Thomas Moffat, NIST, Gaithersburg, MD, USA
S. J. Pearton, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL, USA
Tae-Yeon Seong, Korea University, Seoul, South Korea
Gery Stafford, NIST, Gaithersburg, MD, USA
Bernard Tribollet, Université Pierre et Marie Curie, Paris, France
John Wilkes, USAF Academy, CO, USA
Rong-Jun Xie, National Institute for Materials Science, Tsukuba, Ibaraki, Japan

We are indeed most grateful that these eminent colleagues have accepted our invitation to join the EAC. We look forward to working with them and to having their input and assistance in serving our authors and readers.
